

John Huddle continues to live in Western North Carolina. He works providing services to Credit Unions. In addition to writing his blog, www.religiouscultsinfo.com, John serves as a member of the Faith Freedom Fund helping survivors from high demand religious groups. He is also a member of the International Cultic Studies Associations (ICSA). John attended their annual conference in July 2014 held in Washington, D.C. There he read the Prologue to this book and it was well received, garnering mention in their first magazine published in 2015. Membership in this Association allows John to meet and connect with survivors from many different types of high-demand groups, gaining from their experiences and friendship. Look for John's next book revealing the struggles and victories after leaving WOFF, expected to be published in 2016.
